The history of today's health centres

- 1890: high infant mortality rates in Norway.
- Two precursors : children's care centres run by the church and health centres run by the Norwegian Women's Public Health Association.
- 1911: The first health centre for mother and child opened. Aim improve hygiene and nutrition & prevent infection.
- As living standards improved, the focus shifted to health promotion and prevention.

Netherlands

A community care model focusing on elder care

Health system

- ▶ Based on mandatory social health insurance for all citizens
- ▶ Reformed in 2006 with a single compulsory insurance scheme for essential curative care with competition among multiple private health insurers.
- ▶ The Ministry of Health, Welfare and Sport is responsible for defining the basic health insurance package, service tariffs, setting public health targets, and deciding the capacity in long-term care institutions.
- ▶ Local governments are responsible for long-term care, including home care services
- ▶ Since 2002 there has been a focus on shifting care from secondary care to primary care, mainly for chronic diseases
- ▶ Health services are funded by a mix of obligatory social and private insurance, with additional co-payments for long-term care.
- ▶ Many social services are financed from municipal funds.

Slovenia

A century-long tradition of community nursing

Organisation of services

- ▶ 57 CHCs provide services to 459 locations.
- ▶ Most are owned by local governments and the rest are concessions to private doctors.
- ▶ Multidisciplinary teams include general practitioners (GPs), specialists in family medicine, paediatricians, gynaecologists, dentists, community nurses (patronage nurses), nurse practitioners (NPs), midwives, pharmacists, physiotherapists, kinesiologists, psychologists.
- ▶ Health promotion centres were established in some CHCs to support and enable positive lifestyle changes, with Norwegian funding.
- ▶ The Strategy of development of nursing and health care in the Republic of Slovenia for the period from 2011 to 2020 defines the key activities for the field of health care within community health nursing.

8 drivers for a successful implementation

1. Community care centres hinged on PHC
2. Central regulation in order to avoid fragmentation and guarantee equal and standard opportunities for all
3. Training of professional to achieve change management and cultural change
4. Changing perspective of care delivery, empowering patients
5. Shared guidelines and healthcare pathways in order to guarantee continuity of care between professionals and between different healthcare settings
6. Information System to feed circulation of data (EHR) and monitoring processes
7. Family doctors network acting as gatekeeper
8. Keep population informed in order to facilitate access to services, collect their feedback, rise awareness, set tailored solutions and increase compliance.
